

In his decision, Judge Linnahan said that he had made careful investigation and that he was convinced of the constitutionality of the law under which the complaint was made, and further that the complaint was sufficient to warrant the granting of the temporary injunction until the case should be decided by trial.

In the Land of the Czar

A STORY OF RASPUTIN.

By Paul Holmes.

Chapter Ten.
Rasputin off Prince. Usipoff started away at a rapid gait, and its minutes, the prince himself, and the political contemporary, Barnard, composed themselves for the half hour's ride.

Usipoff was still excited over the news that he had just received from the royal palace, and he was wildly speculative over its many possible imports. "Why," he cried, "the fact is a s... outfitted those supposed... wonderful palace guards, and he has succeeded in hiding himself away in the private part of the building. Perhaps before we are shot a bullet through Sturmer, and no bullet could ever be better used."

Safety First.
At the first sign of a cold take—power and prestige, still he is terrible. What? Where are you going? Usipoff too had sprung forward, peering out of the glass windows of the door. Their cab had suddenly turned down a small side street, going directly out of the path of the palace. With instant alarm, both men sprang toward the door. It was Golitzin that tried the handle.

"It is locked!" he cried with terrible paleness a moment later. A moment's investigation on Usipoff's part convinced the prince of the truth of Golitzin's words. The door was securely fastened and on the outside.

The next moment there was a splintering of glass and the muzzle of a rifle was protruding through a newly made aperture in the glass panel which connected the interior of the cab with the driver's seat.

"It won't do any good to fight, gentlemen," came a clear, cold voice. "I can kill any one of you at my pleasure."

For a moment Usipoff was stunned by the suddenness of it all. He realized that he and his companion had been the victim of a plot, and that they were now at least temporarily in the hands of brigands—or were their captors, perhaps, the servants of Rasputin. Then the details of the whole plot came to him. Rasputin had heard of the happenings in the Dama that morning and he taking this means of preventing their reaching the Czar.

He did not intend when a revolver was shoved through the opening accompanied by commands for surrender.

Twice the revolver spat fire and twice the bullet failed to find a mark.

With galloping horses, the carriage carried out of the little side street, and on to a main thoroughfare once more. A large house had obstructed a view of this street before, and now the madly revving cab made its appearance just as another vehicle was passing diagonally. Collision was inevitable.

With a cry the driver jerked the reins sharply to one side in a desperate effort to turn the horses, and then toppled over, just as the oncoming carriage crashed into it.

Chanted Eleven.

L'Verme Makes Good His Trust.

Yes, peace was declared. Peace was existing between Germany and Russia. Von Jagow and Sturmer had appended their names to the treaty, and with the last stroke off Boris Sturmer's pen hostilities had ceased.

In the whole world there were only four persons who knew the fact. Those four were within Rasputin's sanctum, but unless something was done to prevent it, all the world would know the disastrous truth before another day. Rasputin had breathed a great sigh of relief when the last formalities were over. He had won. In spite of many obstacles he had triumphed over the enemies and accomplished that which he had promised the Kaiser. And no one will ever know what the Kaiser had promised Rasputin before he had exacted that promise! Now all that remained was to go to the Czar and then give the news to the press.

The monk smiled grimly as he thought what a commotion that news would bring about. And the world, the world for whose plaudits he had incessantly played upon the stage of life, the world would now know that he was responsible for the whole affair, and would respect or hate him, as they saw fit. But the hate of the powerful is something to be proud of.

Yes, Rasputin was satisfied. "The other treaties," Summer suggested, we may as well attend to them now.

"Yes," said Von Jagow, "let's get through with it all."

Rasputin silently selected the treaty of peace with Austria-Hungary and passed it over to the German foreign secretary.

As before, Von Jagow carefully scanned the words of the compact over, and then he set himself to write. "Don't write one word!"

In sudden apprehension, the three men looked at each other, not knowing when the mysterious command had come. The next moment there was the sudden report of a pistol, and the pen which Von Jagow had held in his fingers was shot in two.

Fifth revolver in each hand Francois L'Verme turned from his hiding place. He confronted the terrorized group with gleaming eyes.

"Don't move!" he shrieked. "Don't dare to move. I can kill you instantly. Rasputin—keep your fingers from the electric button which opens the door! See how I can shoot. L'Verme was a real natural marksman, which fact had already won him the Cross of the Legion of Honor in the French army. Now he saw fit to give these men an example of his skill, and he placed the hair of the trigger which Sturmer held in his mouth.

The three were stunned for a moment, and completely helpless. L'Verme saw that his marksmanship had been terroristic enough, he walked quickly to the table. "Back!" he ordered. "Back into the corner!"

And the conspirators could do nothing but obey although Francois could see that Rasputin was recovering his poise, and that a look of cunning was appearing on his face. He resolved to be intensely watchful, for he could take any chance upon the revolver.

"Next time," Rasputin, took out for a Frenchman," he cried tauntingly, trying to work the monk into an unreasoning rage. "Next time guard your doors with your own arms."

Then he laid one revolver down and picked up the treaty of peace. He finally deposited it upon the floor and examined the other documents hastily, placing them in a pile on top of the first one. At length everything of importance was piled up on the floor.

L'Verme flourished the revolver. "Back!" he warned. "Back!"

The men were snarling in rage now as they saw his intentions, and Sturmer went so far as to reach stealthily toward his hip pocket. Without appearing to move, Francois shot the fellow in the arm. Then he drew a match from his pocket and struck it. The yellow flames flared up and he let it get well alight. Then he dropped the match upon the papers and stood guard while the fire slowly caught, and at last burst into a full flame as it began to devour the important documents.

In the corner the three men were helpless, although one may well imagine their state of mind in seeing what they had supposed to be the important diplomatic papers reduced to ashes.

After a time the fire died down and cracked in the blackened remains of the papers. L'Verme then scattered the ashes with his feet, grinding out every trace of legibility. He faced Rasputin with a look of triumph.

"Scraps of paper," he murmured derisively. "Only scraps of paper." (To be continued next Saturday.)

Temperance Talks

(By Temperance Educational League.)
Labor Men Favor Prohibition. It is not the Prohibitionist, it is the laboring man who is voting the cities dry. This is the opinion of men who have studied election returns in recent returns. The average working man is thinking for himself and he is unwilling to become a slave to the drink habit or a dupe of the saloon. He wants to save his money, pay his bills, own his home and be a respectable citizen. He knows very well the saloon is a nuisance and he is glad to be rid of it.

We have before us an editorial from Denver Labor Bulletin, organ of organized labor which expresses the sentiment of the wage earners of Colorado upon this subject. It is in part as follows: "The law has worked a wonderful revolution for good, and at least 75 per cent of the union voters were against the amendment which would vote to retain it now should occasion arise. Last fall when it was sought to amend the law to permit the manufacture and sale of beer in this state, the proposition was defeated by an adverse majority of 89,000 votes."

"There are more well fed, better clothed and happy families of working people in Colorado than ever before. Especially have members of organized labor realized during the past year the fallacy of that old slogan about the saloon being 'the poor man's club.' They have discovered that this so-called 'poor man's club' got a very large share of their earnings which now goes to support the family or establish a bank account."

"The Bulletin has no hesitancy in saying that on the whole the condition of Colorado working people is at least 50 per cent better up and down the state since prohibition. The increase in savings deposits last year was truly remarkable, and retail merchants declare collections are made more promptly than when the saloon door stood wide open to invite the wage-earner bearing a pay envelope."

"Today it is practically impossible to find a member of organized labor in Colorado advocating a return of former conditions with the open saloon and its accompanying crime."

Dinner Stories

During his vacation a lawyer met an old friend in the village and their conversation drifted to a discussion of the natives. A young farmer came under their view. "He's a fine looking young fellow," said the lawyer. "Well," assented his friend, "anyway, he has a mighty good head."

"It ought to be good," was the reply. "This man's head is brand new—he's never used it any."

Professor Glatman dropped in at his friend the doctor's the other night. He seemed in a great hurry. "Ah, professor," said the doctor, "come in. Let me take your coat and hat. Been taking a sharp walk. How's the great book getting on—the monograph on 'Biological Researches Among the Nocturnal Tribes of Northern Siberia'?"

Once started on the topic nearest his heart the professor dropped into an easy chair and talked for hours. A bottle of whiskey was produced. It lasted till midnight.

"Well, goodnight, professor," said the doctor. "Give my regards to all at home. They're all well, I suppose."

"My goodness!" cried the professor. "That reminds me. I know. I came to see you about something. My wife's dying of ptomaine poisoning."

"Willie," said his mother, "I wish you would run across the street and see how old Mrs. Brown is this morning."

A few minutes later Willie returned and reported: "Mrs. Brown says it's none of your business how old she is."

DRY JANESVILLE

Wise Words by Wise people

To the man who is actively engaged in responsible work, who must have at his command the best that is in him at its best—to him I would, with all the emphasis I possess, advise and urge, leave drink alone absolutely.

William H. Taft.

I have no harsh word to speak of any. The liquor traffic is the awful heritage of a less wise, less kind and less enlightened past. For its existence in this gentler age we are all more or less responsible. Let us combine to put it away, "with malice toward none, with charity for all."

Frances E. Willard.

To sell drink for a livelihood is bad enough, but for the whole community to share the responsibility and guilt of such a traffic seems a worse bargain than that of Eve and Judas. We believe in cutting that liquor dog's tail off right behind the ears.

Horace Greeley.

The drink trade is our shame, scandal and sin, and unless brought under by the will of the people it will be our downfall. VOTE AGAINST IT.

Cardinal Manning.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Snow or rain tonight and Sunday; warm or extreme east and colder west portions tonight, less, colder Sunday, strong shifting winds.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

If the Florida tourist, tanned and sunburned by the genial climate, could go into a trance, as he steps aboard a train bound for his destination, 1,500 miles away, and open his eyes, forty-eight hours later in a land of ice and whirling snow, the transformation would tax belief, but when he bumps along the rails, mile after mile through half a dozen states noted for monotony of scenery and the atmosphere of the long Pullman train so uniform that the first blast of winter strikes him like a pleasant reminder of home.

To people who seldom travel the Pullman train as it whisks through the country is an object of envy, but a little familiarity dispels the vision and the traveler soon weathers of the monotony and discomforts of the long journey.

There are half a dozen railroads running through trains from Chicago to Florida, but only two from New York, and of the two hundred thousand tourists now in the south, at least three-fourths of them are from the east. This means that the roads are taxed beyond capacity and will be for months to come.

The train which left Jacksonville, on one of these lines, the morning of March 24, carried a dozen sleepers, in two sections, and picked up half a dozen more before it was half way to Washington, and the exodus of tourists from the south has not yet commenced.

These solid Pullman trains carry an average of one hundred and fifty passengers at about $35.00 each. They pay half as much more for state rooms and compartments, and the dining cars, which are open most of the time during the day and evening, serve from eight hundred to one thousand meals at from one dollar up.

A passenger on one of these crowded trains, evidently dissatisfied, said: "If these people were hogs they would be loaded into freight cars and shipped across the country at from two to three dollars a head." He expressed the opinion that in the good time coming, when the government owned the railroads, there wouldn't be so much difference between a Pullman and a freight car ticket. His fellow tourists decided that he was a subject for the freight department.

The "home dry" campaign—which would be of all-absorbing interest just now, but for the threatening war cloud—is being vigorously prosecuted in the south and many of the cities have now in the dry column. Nashville, Tennessee, is one of them, and the old saloon district, noted for vice and immorality, is now a prosperous business section.

The state of South Carolina, which last year restricted the sale of beer and whiskey to one gallon per month per each individual order, has returned the amount of this year to one quart, and the order must be in the form of a prescription endorsed by the municipal judge. It is needless to say that there is very little drunkenness in the state.

The legislature of Wisconsin is making a mistake, by the way, in refusing to submit the question of state-wide prohibition to the people. The state will be forced by federal legislation within the next two years, at the stroke which are now being made. It would be a credit to the city of Janesville to participate in the movement, and voluntarily adopt the reform.

So far as business is concerned, there is no argument in favor of the traffic. The dry cities of the south are undoubtedly losing money from a purely business standpoint, and the city of Seattle, on the coast, after a few months' experience, could not be induced to return to old conditions. The campaign now being waged is the people's campaign. There is nothing spasmodic about it, and very little sentiment. It is largely a matter of business and is bound to win.

The change of climate from the sunny south to the vigorous north is not the only change which impresses the tourist as he steps from the train into the congested traffic of the big Pennsylvania station at 32d street, New York, where a guide is needed to pilot him through the building and lead him on the street, and then as he enters the subway at the rush hour, and is herded aboard the ill-smelling train in a crowd which resembles a flock of sheep, he longs for the open country and a breath of God's fresh air and sunshine.

People are peculiar and tastes differ. Many people seem to enjoy this kind of transportation, which is worse than the log on the freight train, because the log has no rooms for the other fellow to step on. The average New Yorker, or at least half a million of him, spends two hours a day between his bedroom in Brooklyn and his business place in New York, hanging to a strap in a crowded subway car, while going to and from his work. That means time enough lost every day for a name of gold.

The New York papers, regardless of the high price of paper, issue an extra about every hour. They have been paying a cool deal of attention to Senator La Follette and his little coteries, for the past few days, and are speculating as to what his state will do with him. They will be surprised to see him bob up serenely on occasion, for while the post has never had very much time for him, his strange hold on his own state is usually effective.

New York is so near the seat of war, so far as preparation is concerned, that the atmosphere is full of it, and yet there is but little excitement except when some bomb-thrower is arrested. The city has so many experiences with her mixed population, that the people are never surprised at anything which happens. Yet this mixed population, on the whole, is loyal, and the manifesto recently issued by the German Alliance expresses the sentiment of our adopted citizens in the great metropolis.

The city has been unusually gay this winter and money seems to be as free as water. The hotels are crowded to capacity and the theaters and cabarets are all playing to standing room only. The bread riots, which have attracted so much attention, seem to be led by fanatics with a sprinkling of suffragettes, and the impression prevails that the people have been living on pie so long that they are unwilling to cut it out. Statistics show that enforced idleness is rare, and there is less poverty in the city than usual at this season of the year.

Chicago is great in many ways, but the city of New York is greater, and her network of highways by land and sea will continue to keep her at the front as the nation's metropolis. The gateway to the nations of the world, while temporarily closed, will continue to be the nation's gateway.

The results of the late election were a surprise to the conservative New Yorker, who is loath to admit that there is anything worth while west of Buffalo. The old Empire state has lost her political supremacy and no longer holds the balance of power, while the west continues to look good to the westerner.

practice that incensed the king, my father, to the point of distraction. "He called in the wisest philosophers, an undignified and unprincipled the Zu Zu Islands, but I was apparently incurable. I bit my nails in spite of them all. Finally, as a last resource and on the advice of her royal jibbs, he gave me a keg of imported ten penny nails and made me bite the heads off them all. Alas, even that availed naught. I bit my own nails just the same.

"So my father banished me and made Twoos, my brother, heir to the throne. But, luckily, the experience with the keg of nails hardened my jaws to such an extent that I have been able to earn an honest but easy living."

The Nile of America.

The lower Rio Grande looks like a small Nile, behaves like the Nile, is like the Nile. It flows through a flat alluvial region which it has made and which its periodical overflows keep green. Just as the fellahin along the Nile have for centuries, in dry seasons, supplemented the river's flow by primitive methods of lifting its water up on to their lands, so the Mexicans on both sides of the lower Rio Grande have irrigated their small farms with muddy Rio water.—World's Work.

Pottery of the Amazon.

An interesting tribe of the upper Amazon has been discovered which in its division of work is reminiscent of the guilds of the middle ages. One portion makes clothing and nothing else; another one is purely agricultural; another devotes its time and labor to the construction of weapons, and so on. Their pottery, however, is the most notable of their productions. Some of these jars are extremely large, but very thin, although strong and durable. Some of the smaller vessels are almost as thin as paper.

FROM BARE FEET TO BRITISH PEERAGE

Baron Hugh Graham.

A little more than a half century ago a bare-footed farmer's boy walked into Montreal, Canada, and asked for a job as office boy in a newspaper office. Just recently this same boy, Hugh Graham, a millionaire, was raised to the British peerage with the title of baron and a seat in the house of lords.

BILL MAKES EASY JANESVILLE-BELOIT COUNTY TRUNK LINE

Will be Before Legislature Tuesday—$187,000 Possible in Period of Five Years.

The joint legislative highway committee on Tuesday will report back a bill of big importance to Rock County. It will cover the matter of the proposed trunk line to connect Janesville and Beloit and other state trunk lines. Under the provisions of the statute Rock county's direct tax annually for the road, providing the supervisors decide on its construction, will be but $12,500 against a total of $125,000 to be secured from other sources, including the county tax over a period of three years.

Senator Lawrence E. Cunningham of Beloit this morning received the information that the bill would come up for consideration on Tuesday. Over long distance telephone he explained the bill to the Gazette.

The probable annual receipts for 1918, 1919 and 1920 under the provisions of the joint committee trunk line bill will be $112,500 for the three years," said the senator.

The federal government's highway bill permits the appropriation of $12,500 annually. From a state a similar sum will be secured. This will come from the automobile tax, when the county will also receive $12,500, making a total of $25,000 annually for the construction of the connecting link.

"In addition to this from the state's automobile tax the county will present the sum of $10,000 for the maintenance of the trunk line. For the maintenance of other main roads will come $13,500 from the automobile tax. The total receipts from the federal appropriation and the state auto fees will total $54,500.

"In five years the county will have secured a total amount of $187,500 for the road."

Senator Cunningham was enthusiastic regarding the bill. It gives the county an excellent opportunity to secure the most trunk line through a number of dollars cheaper than was possible previously to passage of the national highway bill.

Senator Cunningham also said that the state automobile tax, which has increased to ten dollars at least, the fee at the present time being incorporated in the highway bill. The auto fee will be on a sliding scale, increasing with the increase in the tax.

The provisions of the present state highway bill in no way be altered by the new measure.

FURTHER DRY CAUSE IN DAILY MEETINGS

Community Gatherings Held in Homes in Various Quarters of City to Urge Prohibition.

The daily meetings held at the homes of citizens last week by the temperance workers, have been of very high order of merit. Good music and fine addresses have been the rule. The speakers rely on the presentation of clear, logical facts to bring the points home. They bring the experience of business men, of judges and of city officials where dry methods are inaugurated, to show the great improvement in the social and civic conditions over the old system of license.

A meeting was held on Friday afternoon at the home of F. C. Binewieser on Calhoun avenue.

The speaker was Mr. Warren Stoughton, the state vice president of the W. C. T. U. She is a very enthusiastic worker and as Stoughton has been dry for several years she has the value of practical experience to back her statements in local conditions. An informal talk followed the address, as those present were glad to ask questions and inform themselves concerning the workings of the plan. The whole arrangement of the meetings as planned by the local committee, shows that these workers are to be congratulated on strictly educational and business methods and with no appeal to the emotional element formerly relied on in such movements. At the meeting on yesterday, the speakers, Mr. Binewieser gave two vocal numbers, "Faith and Hope," and "Just For Today," which were much enjoyed by those present.

Over Seven Hundred Cattle of This Breed Owned by Members of Rock County Association.

Secretary M. S. Kellogg of the Rock County Guernsey Association has compiled statistics showing the number of pure bred and grade Guernseys owned by the various members of the association. The list also indicates that many of the breeders have stock for sale, the total amounting to forty-one males and thirty females, which are available for breeding purposes. The Rock County Guernsey Breeders' association was organized in May of 1915 with fifteen charter members. There are now fifty-one members on the secretary's books.

BEGINS DUTIES AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH

Reverend Charles M. Olson Will Preach His First Sermon at Local Church Sunday Morning.

The Reverend Charles M. Olson, newly appointed pastor at St. Mary's church, will deliver his first sermon in his new position on Sunday morning, March 11th. He was here last Sunday and held his first services.

It is a noteworthy fact in connection with the arrival of Father Olson as pastor of the local church, that it was while he was attending the Janesville high school and was a member of the St. Mary's congregation that he was persuaded by Father Robert J. Roeder to enter the priesthood. He entered St. Francis seminary near Milwaukee and finished the full ten year course. He was ordained by the Right Reverend Bishop Els in May, 1910. The latter day he said his first holy mass in St. Mary's church of which the Reverend W. A. Goebel, whom he succeeds, was pastor.

Father Olson's first appointment was as assistant priest to his former pastor, Father Roche, who had been promoted to the pastorate of Holy Rosary church, Milwaukee. After serving as priest in Milwaukee for nearly four and a half years, he was appointed pastor of St. James' church at Neeshkoro, Wis., with missions at Watoum and Princeton. In these missions the majority of the parishioners were of German descent and the German language was used in priestly ministrations.

From Neeshkoro, Father Olson was appointed pastor of St. John's church at Clyman, Dodge county, serving for more than four years. During his pastorate at Clyman $7,000 worth of improvements were made upon the church property. He left Clyman to take charge of the parish at Montello where he has been for the past nine months. In this time the congregation was freed from debt and improvements were made on the church property to the extent of $3,000.

Father Olson is a native of Cambridge, Dane county, where he was born May 25, 1877.

The Reverend W. A. Goebel, who has been pastor of St. Mary's church for the past eighteen years, has been granted a three months' leave of absence by the archbishop, which he will spend at his old home in Mariet.

Father Olson's brother, Frank Goebel, Janesville citizens will extend a hearty welcome to Father Olson and his first wife, who will be in the new pastorate at Montello which he will assume after enjoying a well earned rest.

MYERS THEATRE.

Clifford Hipple, surrounded by a company of competent players will be seen at the Myers Theatre tomorrow night in "Dream Girl O' Mine," a romantic comedy written by Rida Johnson Young. This is a story of ancient days with its scenes laid in Ireland and its characters drawn from that country. It tells in a pleasing way of love complications and plotting. There is an atmosphere of rebellion and yet it never falters in its love interest. Incidental to the action of the play Mr. Hipple will sing a number of those delightful Irish songs for which the Irish are noted. He has a rich, clear, well cultivated baritone voice, and his singing is one of the many enjoyable features of his work. The story is staged with the same scenic investiture given it by Chauncey Olcott during the two years in which he played it all over the land. The scenes are typical of Ireland at the time of which the plot deals.

MYERS THEATRE.

Where to House 20 Arabs, a Puzzle. Troupe of twenty with "The Garden of Allah" Company want to do their own housekeeping.

Where is Janesville going to house the troupe of twenty Arabs who will be in the city on Saturday, March 24 along with that gorgeous spectacle "The Garden of Allah."

This is the question that is worrying the management of the Myers Theatre and as advance agent of this big production, who has been in the city since last Tuesday morning to scout up accommodations for those dark-skinned "sons of the desert."

Of the thirty-six Arabs in the company, sixteen are Americanized, but the remaining twenty can not speak a word of English. The Americanized part of the troupe will be able to find room for themselves but it is up to the advance agent to secure accommodations for the other twenty.

There are one hundred and ten people in the "Garden of Allah" production including the thirty-six Arabs and a working crew of nine men, comprising carpenters, electricians and others. It is believed the majority of the company will be able to obtain rooms at private houses if the hotels can not take care of all the company.

Along with the fact that the un-Americanized Arabs will do their own cooking while here in the city, is the announcement that Ben Tata, a member of the troupe, is the chef, and it is up to him to prepare all the food eaten by his fellow-countrymen. The meat is prepared in true Arabian style, and no good member of this aggregation would think of eating meat that was not prepared by Ben Tata.

Other interesting facts in connection with "The Garden of Allah" may be summarized as follows:—

Five camels, also seven horses, six donkeys, and eight goats are carried to add realism to the desert scenes. Twelve bags of powdered cork mixed with fine bran are used at each performance to make the sand storm effect.

Two of the Arabs appearing in the play are practicing physicians in their native country.

The doves used in the monastery scene are from Algeria and do not "do well" in this climate. They are bedded, when the temperature is below seventy degrees, in heated sand.

The panorama of the desert in the second act of the play is the longest and deepest single canvas ever painted for "regular" theatrical use.

Robert Hichens' contracts for the dramatization of his novel stipulated that there should be no incidental music during the action of the play.

Those who saw the Great Fredrik at the Myers theatre last evening were well entertained by the nimble wit and pleasing personality of this great magician.

With several nimble helpers, an odd comedy man, he fairly dazzles the audience with the way he produces live stock from vacant spaces, conjures bushes of roses from thin air, shoots canaries from a closed paper bag back into their cages and with a dip net scoops white fluttering doves out of the atmosphere. It is all an exceptional bit of miscellaneous wizardry that will vastly entertain anyone.

During the intermission the time was most agreeably filled by Miss Inez Nourse, rendering banjo solos which were lively and pleasing.

Greatest Film Sensation of the Season to be Seen Here

Photo drama that set New York agog; jamming the Maxine Elliott Theatre to its fullest capacity and which has also crowded the largest theatres in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, Red Wing, Mankato, Fargo, Milwaukee and other cities at advanced prices, is now to be shown here for the first time.

IS ANY GIRL SAFE?

SEEN BY MORE THAN 18,600 PERSONS IN EIGHT DAYS AT SHUBERT THEATRE, MINNEAPOLIS AT ADVANCED PRICES

HIGHLY INDORSED AS A FILM OF INTENSE INTEREST

The Minneapolis Tribune said: "Is Any Girl Safe?" a sensational five-act, crowd-vice motion picture drama, opened at the Shubert last night to a crowd which overflowed the theatre. The film is one of intense interest, and abounds in heart throbs from the moment two young villains in the first reel begin their machinations to "harsh souls for gold" until the closing reel when Bill Kern, who, after his reformation, rescues a girl who has fallen into the trap set by these vultures of society. The New York American said: "The large audience that fought its way into the Maxine Elliott theatre to see 'Is Any Girl Safe?' were thrilled to the core; mothers departed with a prayer of gratefulness that their daughters had escaped." The Minneapolis Journal said: "Bill Reid has taken a difficult subject in 'Is Any Girl Safe?' but he has handled it with discretion and without offense so that the film can be viewed by everyone."

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I read with great interest the letter in your issue regarding the matter of divorce and remarriage, signed by "A Divorced Stenographer."

Evidently "A Divorced Stenographer" comes of the orthodox type of Christian, who believes that a Christian who is divorced and remarried is actually and literally a sinner. With that in mind, she interprets his utterances by way of divine reprobation. I am a Jewess, 22, most unfortunately—I might say, outrageously—married. I am also divorced. I was brought up in the most orthodox Jewish faith, and believe firmly in the doctrines of my religion. I am deeply in love with a young man of my own belief, who, however, holds liberal views, and who repeatedly has asked me to marry him. He has all the qualities of character and financial resources which I am positive would make a happy marriage.

But here my religion, too, comes in to balk me. I do not accept the New Testament as part of the Bible, though our best scholars do accept it as being authentic; that is to say, it is actually written by the men whose names it bears, and as such is a dependable historical document. I believe that Christ was a real personage, a great Jew, a great philosopher, a great man, but something of a visionary. He was good and noble and absolutely sincere, but in some things mistaken.

It is my conviction that the inadvisability of divorce and remarriage was ordained by God in the creation, and grounded into human nature from the very start.

It is a part of the positive, natural moral law, and as such binds alike Jew and Gentile on anyone in fact who believes in a Deity at all.

It is true that Moses permitted divorce and remarriage, but he did not command it. That it was permitted was in order to avoid still greater calamities among the Israelites who already had become hardened and diseased.

That is the reason why, when in your New Testament (historically correct) the Pharisees put forward this divorce and remarriage allowed by Moses, as against its absolute prohibition by Christ, the great teacher answered them: "Moses because of the hardness of your hearts suffered you to put away your wives; but from the beginning it was not so." (Matthew 19:8.) "From the beginning" refers back to the words attributed to Adam (Genesis 2:24), "Wherefore a man shall leave father and mother and shall cleave to his wife and they shall be two in one flesh." Under the Mosaic law, moreover, divorce and remarriage was permitted to the Jews alone, not to other nations; and the accepted interpretation of the real Jesus in the time of Moses was to the effect that adultery alone was sufficient cause.

Here you will observe that we have a positive natural law of God—and a positive natural moral law of God can require no mutilations nor can it be altered or abrogated for any emergency whatsoever. "According to our own time and conditions," as you mentioned in regard to the teachings of Jesus, it might just as well be argued that eventually we may try to justify murder, theft, blasphemy, idolatry or rape, in order to adapt these things "according to our own time and conditions," which would be manifestly absurd to affirm.

You say: "I consider it immoral to live with a man whom I do not love. Well, so did I—and I quit him. But we're talking all the time about divorce and remarriage. Oh, dear me!"

And all the while there's the man I love, waiting and pleading to marry me, and trying to convince me differently and I simply cannot see my way. Please do help me.

There are several ways of viewing an unfortunate marriage. Some say that the couple never were mated by God and were therefore never married. But in such a case they are not permitted to marry again unless they are legally separated. Marriage is made too easy now, so divorce is inevitable. As I said before, because the public was law several thousand years ago is to reason it should be law today. In some cases divorce is necessary and it should be granted. If I were in your place I would marry the man I loved. Surely a just God does not intend that you shall be unhappy all your life just because of one terrible mistake you made when you were young.

"No," was the doubtful answer. "She has hardly spoken to her since her enforced apology. Mr. Jaynes keeps his eyes open. I can tell you, and not at all thing easy." Mrs. Jaynes treats her beautifully when he is in sight and as they avoid each other at all other times there is no trouble, but you can imagine how cramped and confined Mollie feels there. She will stetch her soul when she gets away, I'm thinking.

"Clyde must be blind not to see that she lives under a restraint there."

"Oh, I don't know. Everything is apparently all right while they are all together, and they spend their evenings in their own room or in the billiard room upstairs, where the father practically lives when he is at home. Mrs. Jaynes almost never goes up there."

"Did I tell you that Mollie has invited me to Kansas City to help her pick out her furniture? I love to select furniture; I shall have a great jolly."

"Isn't Clyde going?" asked Tom.

"She did not mention it, but I should think he would want to. I should not feel sure that what I got would please him."

"Now was the quick answer, and Marjory remembered the unfortunate carpet that Tom had selected and she had not liked."

"The only way to do is to go together. The home is the home for both, not for one, and if a man cares for effects he should surely be consulted. If he cares. Perhaps Clyde doesn't care," was the sleepy answer.

"I am terribly sleepy; let's go to bed." (To be continued.)

Household Hints

ECONOMY COOKIES AND CAKES.
Fruit Cookies—Two cups brown sugar, one cup lard, one cup soda, one teaspoon salt, add flour to make stiff dough. Roll thin and cut into strips as long as wide. Sprinkle with half double over and press edges together. Bake in quick oven.

Filling for cookies: One cup ground walnuts, one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon flour. Add one-half cup hot water and cook until it thickens. Let cool before using.

Cookies With Eggs—One cup shortening (meat fryings of any kind), one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, one cup brown sugar, one cup granulated sugar, six cups flour, vanilla for flavoring.

Expensive Hermits—One cup light brown sugar, one-half cup shortening, one-half cup cold coffee, one egg, one-half teaspoon soda in coffee, one cup baking powder in flour to make stiff enough to handle nicely; then add one-half cup each of nuts and raisins. Spices to taste. This makes about two dozen, they keep fine.

Apple Sauce Cake—This recipe must be measured exactly. Two cups flour, one cup sugar, two teaspoons soda, pinch salt, one teaspoon oil, one teaspoon cloves, half grated nutmeg, three tablespoons chocolate, one tablespoon cornstarch; sift twice. Mix one cup walnuts with one cup seed raisins (chop raisins), add both to dry ingredients, add half cup melted butter, one and one-half cups cold unsweetened apple sauce. Bake one hour in quick oven.

Cheap But Good Cake—One large cup sugar, one pint sweet milk and cream, pinch of salt, one heaping teaspoon good lifting flour to suit taste. This makes two large layers, or a half cake.

Filling and meringue for cake: Take one cup sugar, half a kind of canned fruit will do, let come to boil and thicken with two teaspoons cornstarch; add enough sugar to make quite as sweet as you like. Mix the same way, with a drop or two of coloring added to make it a delicate pink, with a little flavoring of some kind added, is just as good as the fruit juice.

STUFFED PEPPERS.
Take two large peppers, cut off tops, remove seed and chop fine. Add two cups of boiled rice, two tablespoons grated onion, one teaspoon salt, one cup of mustard and one-half cup of mayonnaise. Mix well and press in the hollow peppers. Set in a cold place, arrange salad dish on bed of lettuce. On this add slices of stuffed peppers, and on each slice half of a tomato stuffed olive.

APPLE AND DATE SLAD.
To one cup of apples add three-fourths of a cup of dates, which have been stoned and cut into pieces. Add the same amount of English walnuts. For the dressing add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of white pepper two tablespoons of lemon juice, two tablespoons of oil and three tablespoons of cream. Serve on lettuce.

CREAM AND CHERRY.
Whip one cupful of rich cream until it begins to get thick. Add one-half cup of nippy cheese and finish beating until stiff. The cheese is soft and will mix readily. Stir in this one-fourth cupful of boiled salad dressing. The one-half cup of nippy cheese is cut into small pieces, one-half cupful of pecans and a few maraschino cherries. The mixture will look light and frothy and tempting. Chill and serve on lettuce leaves without further garnishing.

"The new cook I secured is certainly quiet," said Mr. Duggs happily. "One would never know she is about the place."

"She isn't," chimed in Mrs. Dubba. "She left this morning."

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

DO YOU EAT TOO MUCH?

Every well fed doctor who really knows his job these days tells all his patients they eat too much. Not in so many words, you understand. He goes about it like this: Your metabolism is disturbed, your oxidation process is slow, your ductless glands are driven too hard, your blood pressure is a trifle too high, your "biliousness" is due to your wrong diet, your intoxication demands Bulgarian bacillus cultures and more vegetarian diet, your stomach trouble is the result of a low-grade kidney lesion which requires careful dieting, your loss of energy at the very season of life is due to incipient arterio-sclerosis and clearly points the need of dietetic restrictions and a vacation in the country. All of which is a roundabout, pleasant, professional way of saying: You go-mand, quit stuffing!

No two communities and no two individuals have the same conception of a normal appetite and a normal diet. Eating is largely regulated by custom, and environment, and rarely indeed by a common sense or scientific determination of the proper amounts of food.

In a sample menu which constitutes what is called a maintenance diet, a man of thirty-five in fair health, weighing 150 pounds, doing office work:

Breakfast—Fruit in season. One slice of bread and butter or toast. One egg. One cup of coffee, containing an ounce of milk or one-third ounce of cream and one teaspoonful of sugar.

Lunch—One slice of bread and butter. Piece of meat 5x3x1 inches. One potato the size of a lemon. A cup of tea with milk and sugar. A small dish of ice cream, pudding or pie.

Dinner—A slice of bread and butter. Small cup of consommé. Two ounces of squash. (An ounce is two tablespoonsful.) Piece of meat same size as lunch; or two ounces of macaroni with cheese. Small dish of any vegetable salad. Baked potato the size of an egg. Fresh fruit. Small cup of cream and one teaspoonful of sugar and cream as for breakfast.

If a man were, say, forty pounds overweight and wished to reduce his weight, this diet would probably serve him with milk and sugar. This would maintain weight and places no burden upon the metabolism.

One weighing 150 pounds could reduce weight by following such a diet and cutting off one item from each meal day by day until a slow decline in weight is noticed, then maintaining the diet at the point necessary to maintain slow reduction yet not impair efficiency and well being.

It is as nearly specific as we can make it for general use. It is impossible to lay down a more definite rule for the individual case without taking into consideration age, occupation, general health and personal habits.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Odorous Perspiration.
Kindly suggest something harmless to apply for odorous perspiration of the armpits. (L. N. P.)

Answer—Bathe the area once a day with a solution of a tablespoonful of official standard formaldehyde liquid in a pint of water. Or apply this solution whenever needed. Salicylic acid 45 grains; boric acid, 1 ounce; alcohol, 3 ounces; water, 1 pint; perfume, sufficient.

Books About Food and Diet.
Please mention some good books upon food values and nutrition and diet.

Answer—The following are probably in all public libraries: "Nutrition and Dietetics" by Winfield S. Hall, M. D. (Appleton); "Food Values" by Dr. Edwin A. Locke (Appleton); "What Shall I Eat?" by Gouraud and Rehnman (Rehman); "Farmers' Bulletin No. 221, 13, 228, 323 and 34 (Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.); "Colon Hygiene" by H. W. Kellogg, M. D. (Good Health Pub. Co.)

Cart Before the Horse.
Will you please inform me which food supplies the material most essential for enriching the blood of a person with anemia caused by a long-continued weakness, or Leukorrhea. (Mrs. W. H. A.)

Answer—You have the care before the horse. A weakness, or leukorrhea, never causes anemia; it never drains on strength. It is a symptom of some functional or organic condition, local or constitutional. An anemic woman could be more likely to be annoyed by leukorrhea. I advise you to let your physician determine what may be the cause of your particular case, and apply the appropriate treatment. This will be the most satisfactory and much more economical procedure. While wheat bread, fresh fruits, the green fresh vegetables and nuts are good foods for anemic persons to eat.

THE ONE TO BLAME.

In almost every marriage there is one person to blame.

I don't mean to blame for the marriage, as that might sound, but for all the little inevitable irritations and misunderstandings that for a man of normal weight the diet just maintains weight and places no burden upon the metabolism.

One weighing 150 pounds could reduce weight by following such a diet

BE SURE TO EAT AN ORANGE TODAY—IT'S NATIONAL ORANGE DAY.

Los Angeles, March 10.—Through-out the United States, meat raising observers as "National Orange Day" in Southern California, however, instead of being observed the day is being celebrated.

As a result of the motion pictures, postcards, newspaper and magazine advertising, personal letters, gifts or citrus fruit and scores of other methods used by citrus interests, the mayors of nearly one hundred cities have issued proclamations calling attention to this being Orange Day, and asking their towns people to partake liberally of the fruit. District chairmen throughout the United States have been at work arousing local interest and have arranged for practically all hotels to serve oranges in many different ways today.

COUNTY CLERK ADVOCATES COMMISSION GOVERNMENT FOR WISCONSIN COUNTIES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Ashland, March 10.—"Commission government for counties as provided for in a bill introduced in the legislature, is advocated by County Clerk Yanke. Ashland county would be governed by a board of five commissioners, according to the provisions of the bill—one being elected from each of five districts which would be created. Each commissioner would be paid not to exceed $1500 a year, which would mean a saving of $1500 a year to the county. Yanke would prefer electing commissioners at large rather than by districts. The commission would displace the present board of supervisors, consisting of twenty-six members, he says.

THE HIGHFLIERS

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Tom believes that a home means quite as much to a man as to a woman. "I am so glad that Mollie is so much happier in a home," Marjory was sitting on the broad arm of the Morris chair, smiling down into her husband's face. "No woman really knows what happiness is until she is in her own home with the man she loves."

"What about a man?" asked Tom, stretching. He is slipped feet out toward the dining place that glittered on the hearth. The soft drip of the spring rain was a soothing sound to a man who had no errand out in the dampness of a night whose eyes rested on a very charming interior and a pretty wife.

"Oh, men have so much to think about. Business demands all their thoughts during the day, while a woman can sweep and wash dishes just as successfully while thinking steadily about her husband and her home interests." Marjory settled her head on Tom's shoulder, looking her hand under her cheek to protect it from the roughness of his coat.

"If by thinking of home you mean definite dwelling on things or people, suppose you are right. No man could succeed in business who was mooning around that way, but after all it is the home that makes him exert himself. He is thinking of that subconscious all the time. That is what is making the whole thing go."

"I have seen single men work," laughed his wife. "There is not so much difference in the way they work, either."

"There is a difference, all right, even if you can't see it," persisted Tom.

"I can't recall that you showed any great increase in your business powers after we were married; at least not until we came here."

"I was never married until after I was sick. And this was the first time I did at that," Tom smiled at Marjory's head. "Don't you feel that way about it?" Marjory nodded and silence fell between them. They listened to the falling rain and the breaking of even on the hearth. Marjory sighed contentedly.

"As I said, I am so glad Mollie is to have a home like this very day. She will certainly appreciate it after all she has gone through."

"Has the mother-in-law been making her any more trouble?" asked Tom sleepily.

Jose's dark eyes blazed; he bent forward eagerly. "What did you suspect, and why? Tell me all."

It was with a peculiar, apprehensive flutter in her breast that Alaire realized the crisis had come. Heretofore she had blamed Law, but now, oddly enough, she found herself interested in defending him. As calmly as she could, she related all that had led up to the tragedy, while Jose listened with eyes wide and mouth open.

"You see, I had no suspicion of the truth," she concluded. "It was a terrible thing, and Mr. Law regrets it deeply. He would have made a report to the authorities, only—he feared it might embarrass me."

Jose was torn with rage, yet finding a prey to indignation; he rolled his eyes and cursed under his breath. "Those Rangers," he muttered. "That is the kind of men they are. They murder honest people."

"This was not a murder," Alaire cried sharply. "Pamela was hiding a felon to escape. The courts will not punish Mr. Law."

"Bah! Who cares for the courts? This man is a gringo, and these are gringo laws. But I am a Mexican, and Pamela was my cousin. We shall see."

"Don't be rash, Jose," she exclaimed, warningly.

Jose continued to glow. Then, turning away, he said, without meeting his employer's eyes, "I would like to draw my money."

"Very well, I am sorry to have you leave Las Palmas, for I have regarded you as one of my guests," Jose's face remained stony. "What do you intend to do? Where are you going?"

"The fellow shrugged. "Quien sabe! Perhaps I shall go to my General Longoria."

Alaire smiled faintly. "You will be shot," she told him. "Those soldiers are little to eat and no money at all."

But Jose's bright eyes remained hostile and his expression baffling. It was plain to Alaire that her explanation of his cousin's death had carried not the slightest conviction, and she even began to fear that her part in the affair had caused him to look upon her as an accessory. Nevertheless, when she paid him his wages she gave him a good horse, which Jose accepted with thanks but without gratitude. As Alaire watched him ride away with never a backward glance, she decided that she must lose no time in apprising the father of this new condition of affairs.

She drove her automobile to Jonesville that afternoon, more worried than she could admit. Law was nowhere in town, and so, in spite of her reluctance, Alaire was forced to look for him at the Jones home. As she had never called upon Pamela, and had made it almost impossible for the girl to visit Las Palmas, the meeting of the two women was somewhat formal. But an odd, long, remain stiff or constrained with Pamela Jones; the girl had a directness of manner and an honest, friendly smile that simply would not be denied. Her delight that Alaire had come to see her pleased and shamed the elder woman, who hesitatingly confessed the object of her visit.

"Oh, I thought you were calling on me," Pamela pouted her pretty lips. "Dave isn't here. He and father—have gone away."

It needed no close observation to discover the concern in Pamela's eyes; Alaire told her story quickly. "Mr. Law must be warned right away," she added, "for the man is capable of anything."

Pamela nodded. "Dave told us how he had killed Pamela," she hesitated, and then cried, impulsively: "Mrs. Austin, I'm going to confess something—I've got to tell somebody, or I'll burst. I was walking the floor when you came. Well, dad and Dave have completely lost their wits. They have gone across the river—to get Ricardo Guzman's body."

"What?" Alaire stared at the girl uncomprehendingly. "My dear girl, aren't you dreaming?"

"I thought I must be when I heard about it. Dad wouldn't have told me at all, only he thought I ought to know in case anything happens to him." Pamela's breath failed her momentarily. "They left an hour ago in my machine, with two Mexicans to help them. They intend to cross at your pumping plant as soon as it gets dark, and be back by midnight—that is, if they ever get back."

Pamela's face was pale, her eyes were strained and tragic. She made a hopeless gesture, and Alaire wondered momentarily whether the girl's anxiety was keener for the safety of her father or the other?

"Don't we prevent them from going?" she inquired.

"What can we do? They'll go, anyhow, regardless of what we say."

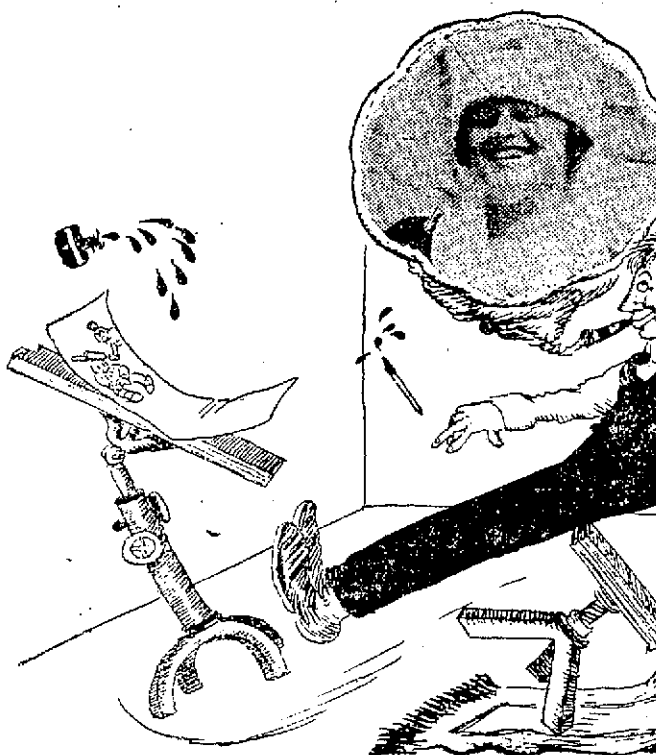

"Well, we could be there—you and I."

Pamela agreed eagerly. "Yes! Maybe we could even help them if they got into trouble."

"Come, then! We'll have supper at Las Palmas and slip down to the river and wait."

Pamela was gone with a rush. In a moment she returned, ready for the trip, and with her she carried a rifle nearly as long as herself.

THE GAZETTE'S MOTORIST PROBLEM DEPARTMENT

(PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.)

Motorist Department, The Gazette.—Please tell me through your columns how to time the valves on my 1912 Hupmobile.

In offering to lend a hand in this difficulty, Alaire had acted largely upon impulse, and now that she took time to think over the affair more coolly, she asked herself what possible business of hers it could be. For her part, Pamela was troubled by no uncertainty of purpose; it did not seem to her at all absurd to go to her father's assistance, and she was so eager to be up and away that the prospect of a long evening's wait made her restless.

As usual, Ed Austin had not taken the trouble to inform his wife of his whereabouts; Alaire was relieved to find that he had probably stayed at Tad Lewis' for supper.

The women were seated on the porch after their meal, when up the driveway rode two horsemen. A moment later a tall figure mounted the steps and came forward with outstretched hand, crying in Spanish: "Senora! I surprise you. Well, I told you some day I should give myself this great pleasure. I am here!"

"General Longoria! But—what a surprise!" Alaire's amazement was naive; her face was that of a startled schoolgirl. The Mexican warmly kissed her fingers, then turned to meet Pamela Jones. As he bowed, the women exchanged glances over his head. Miss Jones looked frankly frightened, and her expression plainly asked the meaning of Longoria's presence. To herself, she was wondering if it could have anything to do with that expedition to the Romero cemetery. She tried to compose herself, but apprehension flooded her.

Alaire, meanwhile, her composure recovered, was standing slim and motionless beside her chair, inquiring smoothly, "What brings you into Texas at such a time, my dear general? This is quite extraordinary."

"Need you ask me?" cried the man. "I would ride through a thousand perils, senora. God in his graciousness placed that miserable village, Romero, close to the gates of heaven. Why should I not presume to look through them briefly? I came two days ago, and every hour since then I have turned my eyes in the direction of Las Palmas. At last I could wait no longer."

Pamela gasped and Alaire stepped through the French window at her back and into the brightly lighted living room. Pamela Jones followed as if in a trance.

Longoria's bright eyes took a swift inventory of his surroundings; then he sighed luxuriously.

"How fine!" said he. "How beautiful! A nest for a bird of paradise!"

"Don't you consider this rather a mad adventure?" Alaire insisted. "Suppose it should become known that you crossed the river?"

Longoria snatched his fingers. "I answer to no one; I am supreme. But your interest warms my heart; it thrills me to think you care for my safety. Thus am I repaid for my days of misery."

"You surely did not"—Pamela swallowed hard—"come alone?"

"No, I took measures to protect myself in case of eventualities."

"How?"

"By bringing with me some of my troops. Oh, they are peaceable fellows," he declared, quickly, "and they are doubtless enjoying themselves with our friend and sympathizer, Morales."

"Where?" asked Alaire.

"I left them at your pumping plant, senora," Pamela Jones sat down heavily in the nearest chair. "But you need have no uneasiness."

Alaire answered sharply. "It was a very reckless thing to do, and you must not remain here."

Longoria drew his evenly arched brows together in a plaintive frown, saying, "You are inhospitable! Then his expression lightened. "Or is it?"

he asked—"Is it that you are indeed apprehensive for me?"

Alaire tried to speak quietly. "I should never forgive myself if you came to harm here at my ranch."

Longoria sighed. "And I hoped for a warmer welcome—especially since I have done you another favor. You say that hombre who came with me?"

broken, so it probably was not charging battery at all. Do you think the negative and positive side of battery is crossed? The car is equipped with a Remy magneto and has been told that I do not get a fat enough spark causing trouble in climbing and reducing the miles per gallon of gasoline. Can you advise me how to remedy this?

R. W. T.

Disconnect one battery wire and see if ammeter needle is bent, and should be straightened by a competent repair man. If positive and negative of battery wire crosses the battery would have been ruined long ago. If magneto spark is not fat enough the magnets may be weak or the distributor breaker need touching up with a piece of emery cloth.

Motorist Department, The Gazette.—Will you please tell me your paper what the trouble is with my car? I have a Grant six-cylinder car, 1910 model. This car when running seems to skip, except when on a pull or when speeding it up. I can be driving along and it will commence to skip and then I can give it more fuel and it will fire nicely until it catches up to the speed that the car would ordinarily run on the amount of gas that it is consuming, and then it will commence to skip again. It does the same way on a pull, will run and pull good as long as you are giving it more gas. The car has a Rayfield carburetor. If I regulate it to give it more gas it seems that it has a tendency to make it skip more, and if I make the mixture thinner it makes it better. I have examined the spark plugs and they seem to be in good shape.

W. M. J.

Trouble is evidently in the mixture. The inlet manifold may leak or the air valve may be stuck. But we will also have got caught in the spray nozzle. Run engine and squirt oil around joints of inlet manifold. If oil is sucked in there is a leak and bolts must be tightened or gasket replaced. If no leak is found remove carburetor and overhaul it carefully. Repace and readjust, and the trouble will probably have disappeared.

Motorist Department, The Gazette.—I have recently installed a new battery on my car and have been having some trouble with my generator, so would like you to advise us in your columns as to the following:

The ammeter shows a charge when generator is idle, and the same when generator is running. What is the cause of this and will it harm the battery? Have had generator examined, finding that the brushes were worn and one

Motorist Department, The Gazette.—I have been driving a 1913 Studebaker "35." This motor seems to run pretty well except when it is pulling or picking up speed, at which time it develops a knock which sounds as if it were in one cylinder. I took the motor down and tightened all the nuts and bearings, as they seemed tight enough. This knock is more noticeable when the spark is advanced. Do you think it could be a worn wrist pin? If it were a wrist pin wouldn't it knock all the time? There is no way of telling which cylinder the knock is in? L. H.

The knock is probably due to piston slap caused by one or more worn pistons. As the piston passes from the compression to the power stroke it has a greater distance to travel than when it was new. This causes a knock, which can only be removed by regrounding cylinders and fitting larger pistons and rings. To determine which cylinder, take a piece of toweling and rest against one cylinder after the other, laying your ear against the other end.

Motorist Department, The Gazette.—I have a 1912 Ford and have trouble in starting same when cold, as it is in gear and cannot be started until one of the rear wheels is locked up and then cranks very easily, but has to be run in this position from five to ten minutes until it gets warmed up. Then can put in foot brake and stop it until the rear wheel can be let down. After it warms up it is no trouble to crank. Have had new brake reverse and slow speed drums and plates put in car, but still sticks when cold.

Try using a thinner cylinder oil. If this fails to cure the trouble change the adjustments of the brake and planetary. Apparently one of them is set up too tightly. A little experimenting along these lines should cure the trouble.

Motorist Department, The Gazette.—I have read much of the aid for motor car owners so will ask some advice. Please put each tire on top and bottom and will delay this danger until indefinitely.

HELPFUL HINTS.

Keep a watchful eye on the king bolt in the steering knuckle. If it wears through the axle will drop and a severe accident may follow. If the knuckle through which it passes seems out of true the bolt is wearing and becoming weaker. Keep it well greased through the grease cup on top and you will delay this danger until indefinitely.

In order to get the best service from your tires it will be necessary to keep careful track of the number of miles run. Get a mileage book at a tire agency or rule a memorandum book for the proper entries. Have a page for each tire and identify it by the manufacturer's number. Have six columns as follows: Date put on and speedometer reading. Date removed, and speedometer reading. Miles run. Total miles to date. If you have no speedometer it will be necessary to estimate mileage by the number of hours run.

Do not think because the magneto gives you such faithful service that it never has troubles of its own. You probably give it a drop of oil in each oil cup and clean occasionally, using a brush or a piece of cloth dipped in gasoline. The dust which accumulates on it will soon short-circuit it, causing engine to miss explosions. Dust sometimes accumulates inside the distributor, which must be removed for cleaning. Another trouble is pitting of the platinum points of the circuit breaker. When this occurs no current can run at all. If this trouble is suspected run a strip of fine (not extra) emery cloth between the points a few times. Do not attempt to file them. If circuit-breaker gap is out of adjustment or any other magneto trouble develops, do not attempt to remedy it yourself.

In case the spring squeaks it will not be necessary to remove it in order to oil. Jack up frame to take weight of car off spring, remove the clips that hold spring leaves together, and pry leaves apart with screwdriver or cold chisel. Graphite grease should then be spread over every leaf, using a table knife or thin piece of metal. There is a tool on the market which spreads the leaves without requiring that the car be jacked up.

If the carburetor catches fire do not give way to panic. Shut off the gasoline at the tank and start the motor if possible. A self-starter is useful here, but one should spin it by hand if necessary. This draws the flame into the carburetor, where it will do no harm. Water from the radiator may be thrown on burning woodwork, but never throw water on a pool of burning gasoline on the floor, as it only spreads the fire.

is in the Frisland that the famous eleven towns' tour and race has taken place—one of innumerable of the kind that are held in all the islands and on the mainland. Competitions of all kinds that are taken place in every part of the country, the tour dates back to antiquity. The Frisians used to take 125-mile skating trips in the dim past when ox-burrows were the only means of transport. It is probable, but the eleven towns' tour is certainly very, very old, and has become a Frisian institution that is the subject of innumerable family traditions. One countryman proudly relates that he has done the tour four times—twice as a young fellow, with a couple of friends, then as a young married man with his wife, who was likewise fleet on skates, and next in the company of a randon. LEAVES CELL TODAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Ossining, N. Y., March 10.—Tried and acquitted on a murder charge which was serving a two-year sentence in Sing Sing for grand larceny, Irving Wechsler, alias "Waxey Gordon," walked out of his cell and away today, free.

Previously charged with the murder of Fred Strauss, a court clerk in New York, was tried a few weeks ago. His trial occupied 77 days and cost the city $70,000. One juror lost $9,000 and another $5,000 because of the expense. Wechsler used to be a lieutenant of the Dopey Feln gang of professional strong arm men, strike breakers.

But Wisconsin is not wholly without compensation in her hour of humiliation. She has a man of her own who has helped to arouse intense American sentiment everywhere. No one but the closest friends of these representatives can realize the magnitude of the work in their individual cases. Senator La Follette has for twenty years preached doctrines destructive of representative government, and he has been merely exemplified his teachings. If Wisconsin will calmly reflect upon this lesson, it may serve a useful and patriotic purpose. A man so expected to pronounce constant and unbridled denunciation of the government under which he lives, as Mr. La Follette, is a dangerous man to have respect for all orderly government. The recent spectacle in the United States senate demonstrated the senatorial attitude toward the president and government. There is no good need for hot anathemas. No man who could do what these Wisconsin men have done would be suspected of cowardice or inaction. Better the words of the Savior upon the cross—"Father forgive them for they know not what they do." He has forgiven us, and we have no cause to hate anyone that patriotic Americans will not.

There cannot be two kinds of patriotism. A man must be for his country, for his government, or against it. The people of Wisconsin will all recognize the fact that they have been misrepresented as pro-German will only bring about the true sentiment of the state with greater force. Milwaukee will be the scene of a mass meeting here soon, and a big one. The probability is, I hear that it will be addressed by Senator Hustings and some other Wisconsin man of considerable prominence. There will undoubtedly be a large attendance. I think Wisconsin will be heard even if there seem to be few men in her public life at Washington or Madison to speak for her. The more prolonged the ef-

There is no doubt every one would take a genuine business interest in the picture which Miss Jackie Saunders, who by the way of a little excitement has just signed a contract to appear in a series of pictures, Miss Saunders does it every morning. She has a habit of turning her head to anything. The soft, lacy pajamas which she wears, for instance, are her own handwork as is the dainty cap. The first three of Miss Saunders' pictures will be "Sunny Jane," "The Checkmate" and "The Wild Cat." The first will be released March 26. These dramatic comedies of the cheerful type which every one loves and which gives the pretty star opportunity to do some of her most characteristic work.

Mary Pickford Rupp, better known as "Mary Pickford," the second, was a little Pickford's small daughter and a niece of "Little Mary." She is having interesting times planned for her by Mary. During pictures have been taken of practically all the events of her life. They have her in all sorts of amusing baby poses, crying, laughing, being pampered to important events, and in all sorts of interesting adventures with various members of the screen and stage not referring to the entire Pickford family. The results are to be carefully put away and they will be presented to Mary in May, about her twelfth birthday.

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

(Copyrighted.) The Billboard of last week in its write-up of the Showman's banquet and had held in the room of the Congress Hotel, has the following to say of the delegate from Janesville:

Seated at honor table No. 66 with these couples was Dave Watt of Janesville, Wis., who by the way, is mentioned in the Janesville Daily Gazette every Saturday night, called "Side Lights on the Circus Business." These articles have proved most interesting to the readers of the Gazette, for the reason that they are different from anything ever published, for he has taken the readers from the ticket wagon to the dressing room and back again, and told them all about how the contracts of the big shows are made. In a way you would think that you were listening to him tell the story. Dave was known in the business in the eighties as the "lightning ticket seller" with the old Adam Forepaugh Show, where he remained until Mr. Forepaugh died. He was a close friend of Wm. F. Cody for many years and tells some interesting stories of his life in the circus business.

At the banquet in the corridor of the hotel, a gentleman came up and shook hands with me and called me by name, but I could neither remember the name or the face.

"Dave," he said, "I can tell you how you'll remember me. Of course, I was connected with the privileges and therefore never met you in a business way, but you will remember the banquet that was given you in 1914 in 58 by Charles McCuen, owner and publisher of the Buffalo Courier."

The Courier company also ran a ticket job after the connection, and in the years that I was with the Forepaugh Show I had paid Mr. McCuen many thousands of dollars for paper with which to advertise the Forepaugh Show. When Charles McCuen died that I was to be presented with a gold medal for fast ticket selling at the show in the afternoon, he immediately came to the front and told my friends that had charge of it, to pick out 60 of my personal friends, and he would give us a banquet that evening at a famous restaurant.

Young Forepaugh invited me to the banquet, but I have forgotten the date," he added, which I well remembered was on September the 12, 1896. Just thirty years ago last September.

I also had a very interesting visit with an old gentleman from New York who was connected with the Barnum Show in 87 and the Barnum & Forepaugh Show which showed together in Madison Square Garden for eight weeks. He was bookkeeper and kind of a general check-up man for the Barnum Show at that time and he said:

"Dave, I can't recall any of the boys that were connected with those shows, but I can recall you and myself," and in the main office on Madison Avenue on the opening night, were all the famous owners of shows from all over the United States for the time the greatest show at that time that had ever been seen.

"But," he said, "all those famous men that were there, that ought, have been over to you suppose they were?" and he smilingly said, "Perhaps they are organizing a big show over there and waiting for a fast ticket seller. I said to him, 'Excuse me, for I made up my mind when I was out of the business, never to go back again.'"

Shows all over the country are of the opinion that the Janesville Col. is a "real Mayor," and a letter received from three last week has the following to say:

"The hurry of a proposed 800 percent raise in the circus license here was fast and furious while it lasted, but prompt action on the part of the showmen gathered here soon brought the matter to an issue where it is likely to stay for a time."

In the first place, when Harry Davis, contractor for the A. G. Barnes Wild Animal Circus, made his application to the tax collector that the ordinance was in abeyance and that he would have to go before the Board of Supervisors for a permit. Incidentally, the collector informed Davis that Supervisor Wolf had a measure up to increase the daily license from $100 to $1000. Davis immediately got busy. Writing or General Agent Murray Pennock and enlisting the services of a few prominent men in the business, he immediately commenced to interview individuals, all the members of the board, a meeting and held at the St. Francis Hotel on Saturday afternoon, and the matter of the ordinance was in the ice cream yesterday!

Sam Hunter got to Mayor Rolph, who by the way is a "regular fellow," and mentioned the matter of the ordinance. "Who's bringing it up?" asked Rolph. "Supervisor Wolf," answered Hunter. "Here's Wolf now," said his honor. "Let's look into it." Wolf acknowledged that he had an ordinance of the sort in his mind, but had been prevailed upon until he was almost decided not to propose action on it. "You mustn't do anything to abuse these showmen," said the Mayor, "because there isn't a child in San Francisco that isn't looking forward to seeing the circus this season. I'll bet your own kids are waiting for a chance to go. We'll give the Barnes People their permit when they apply, and it will be under the old rate."

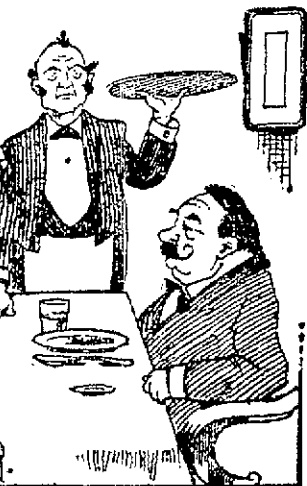

This was done at the Monday afternoon meeting and indications are that there will be no more effort made to place a prohibitive tax on tented organizations.

One of the greatest fairs held in this country is the Nebraska State Fair held at Lincoln. They have just closed a contract for a real attraction for their fair, which is the only one that they will have on the ground.

The Board of Agriculture of Nebraska let it be known that it wished to do something bigger than had heretofore been done in the way of free attractions with a State Fair. The management of the Carl Haggenbeck-Wallace Circus, had frequently been invited by fair associations to cooperate with them. These two circumstances resulted in a deal being made recently where by the Carl Haggenbeck Circus will be offered as a free attraction by the Nebraska State Fair at Lincoln for five days next fall.

In this instance, the circus has been sold outright to the fair directors for five days; the circus not assuming any responsibility other than the presentation of the performance for which they get paid, whether the weather permits of exhibitions or not. On the other hand, the fair and the circus management will cooperate on the publicity end of the deal, and it is expected that the increase in gate attendance will far more than justify the outlay of the small fortune which the enterprising fair directors are paying for the circus. The entire circus performance will be presented in front of the grand stand, twice daily and two street parades will be made during the engagement. No other free attractions will be booked by the fair.

The entire deal, which is unique, being far out of the ordinary, is an experiment, both by the circus and the fair directors. The result will be watched by every fair organization in the country. R. M. Harvey, who put the deal over for the circus, has already received overtures from others wanting the same thing, but the circus management does not wish to undertake any more such contracts until it sees just what benefit it is to the fairs. The Nebraska State Fair is one of the best in this country, and is one of the most progressive, and this new departure on their part is not any great surprise, and they will win with it.

Some of the noblest scenery in America will also be shown during a ride through Yosemite National Park. BANQUETS.

Are banquets a necessary evil? The best banquets are the ones you can't stand. There is always some way to get away from a banquet. Even a rose bed or a false telegram is justified.

But let us get at the reason why people go to banquets.

Why is it that people go to banquets?

Is it loyalty to a cause? No, it is not that. Nobody is that loyal to a cause. Nobody loves his alma mater that well, or his alma anything, for that matter.

Is it for something to eat? Perhaps. But this does not explain why banquets. And there are better places to drink that at a banquet. Who wants to drink in droves. Besides, it is wrong to drink.

Is it for the flow of oratory? No. No. No.

If there is anything worse than the end of a banquet, it is the speeches. It does not help your evening much to stay away until the speeches start, or to leave when they start.

Why, then, do people go to banquets?

To be very outspoken and frank, we do not know.

DISCUSS WISCONSIN AND MICHIGAN ART

Interesting Papers Are Read at Regular Meeting of Art League Friday Afternoon

The art of Michigan and Wisconsin was the general topic of the Friday meeting of the Art League. Mrs. Edden mentioned some of the artists of the two states. Of Michigan, Frieseke and Carl Melcher, and of Wisconsin the following: Residents of Milwaukee, Carl Marr, Richard Lorenz, Spicuzzi, Miss Mabel Key, Charlotte Markham; of Delavan, Frank Dudley and Mr. and Mrs. Schultz, Charles Z. Albright, a native of Monroe, and Fred C. Barker and William Thoma.

The capitol at Madison was described by Miss Harriet Alden, who gave a splendid description of this beautiful building with its wonderful decorations, beautiful paintings, furniture, rugs, etc. The statue of bronze fifteen feet high, crowning the dome, is by Paul Chester French, and the mural painting in the dome by Ed. Blasfield. Two statues, "Genius of Wisconsin," by Nellie F. Meers, and "The West," by Vinnie Ream Hoxie, occupy positions in the entrance halls.

The Civic Art of Madison, was described by Mrs. E. W. Fisher, who spoke of the development of the city along the defining plan of the city and the park system having over 130 acres of land and twenty-five miles of drives, of the Lincoln statue on the university campus, and of the choice collection of paintings, tapestries and historical articles owned by the State Historical society.

Mrs. Nuzum gave a paper on the Layton Art Gallery of Milwaukee, which she said was built at a cost of $115,000 by Frederick Layton, a resident of the city. Thirty-eight paintings were given to the gallery by him and also an endowment of $100,000. Milwaukee has always had many art societies and much appreciation of art.

The private collections of Milwaukee were spoken of by Mrs. Fletcher, who mentioned those of Plankinton, Metcalf and others. The Soldiers' monument by John Conway and other evidences of civic pride were described.

Mrs. S. Grubb gave the Civic Art of Detroit, and described the regular plan which is being worked out to beautify the city.

Mrs. Sowle described the Detroit Museum, which was erected at a cost of a million dollars by the city. Its large collection of pictures, its specimens of Japanese art and its large and flourishing art school. The director of the museum, Mr. Griffith, gives popular lectures on art every Sunday afternoon during the winter to very large audiences.

The Hackley Gallery of Art in Muskegon, Mich., is the gift of a millionaire to his home city of about 20,000 people. There are only a small collection of pictures—about sixty-eight in all—but they are all very choice. Mrs. Woods presided at the meeting and the secretary, Mrs. Edden, kept the records.

The delegates chosen for the district meeting were: Madames Woods, McGowan, Field and Dennison.

Foresight and Courage

Automobile values as at present established are largely due to the foresight and courage of Mr. John N. Willys, the president of this institution.

He foresaw the universal use of the automobile and had the courage to produce quality cars in larger quantities than they had ever before been produced.

Steadily increasing production made possible savings and economies which steadily reduced costs and repeatedly established new values.

Eight years ago, with a net worth of little more than $50,000 this company produced 465 cars.

This year, with a net worth of over $68,000,000 we must produce over 200,000 cars to fill our dealers' contracts.

It has required an enormous investment in plant and equipment to prepare for this enormous production.

The prime requisite in the automobile industry is still foresight and courage.

Mr. Willys foresees a demand this year in excess of the possible supply.

In addition to enormous investment in plant and equipment Mr. Willys had the courage to contract long ago for enormous quantities of raw materials—$35,000,000 worth already in hand for this year's record production.

See all this reflected in the values we have to show you in the most comprehensive line of cars ever built by any one producer.

Note especially the remarkable values represented in the Big Four at $850 and the Light Six at $985.

CARDS WIN BY HAIR OVER CO. E, 12 TO 10; STOUGHTON TONIGHT

No "Pickups" in This Game at Fond du Lac Last Night—Regular Team Can't Be Beaten.

Pit the regular Cardinals against any team in Wisconsin today, on a neutral floor, or even the home floor of the opponents, and the Lakota club (owners will win) at Fond du Lac last night with two more regulars added to the line-up of Mitchell and Knapp of the previous night the Cards nosed out the Co. E five in a close, fast game which ended, 12 to 10, in their favor.

Aside from the Milwaukee Normal Alumni stars there were Edler and Wood in the lineup. When the fourth man was not known here, this morning, it is most likely, though that it was Pitfield.

Tonight the fast Stoughton five comes here to meet the Lakota in the first game of a series to settle the dispute of which team will claim the southern Wisconsin honors. Early in the season the Swedes were only a modest bunch and as it was hard enough, in fact it has since been proven impossible, to bring a team here which would give the locals an even battle, so their requests for games were repeatedly turned down. Since then however Stoughton has been winning consistently and their strength has reached the stage whereby the Cardinals are really forced to play them to settle the dispute which has arisen.

Balton has written that he will be home tonight and if he does come there will be Edler, Atwood and Mitchell and Knapp to go against the Swedes.

BADGERS WILL MEET MINNESOTA TONIGHT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., March 10.—Wisconsin basketball players will meet Minnesota at the university gymnasium Saturday evening in what will be one of the hardest fought games played on the Badger court this year. Minn.

so must win the game if they wish to win the undisputed claim to the conference title, while Wisconsin will feel hard to gain a victory, as they will win third place in the percentage column.

Dr. Meanwell sent his men through the last hard scrimmage on Thursday and reported that the men were in the best of condition and would give Minnesota a hard game. Friday afternoon was spent in signal drill and practicing the plays which will be used against the Hoopers. The lineup to be used has not been announced by the Badger coach.

Minnesota will have the advantage in the game due to their having won from Wisconsin earlier in the season at Minneapolis.

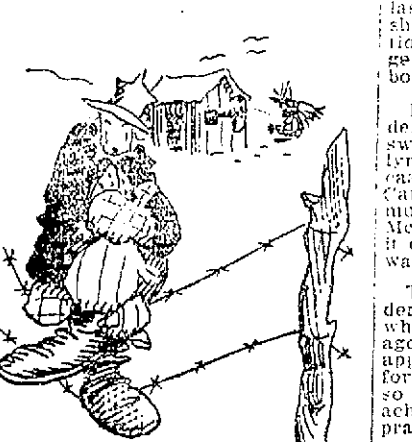

Illinois is especially interested in the outcome of the battle, because a victory for Wisconsin will give them a tie with the Corners for first place in the race. If the Minnesota team wins, however, they will be forced to accept second place.

Following are the lineups:
Wisconsin..... Minnesota.....
Olson, Capt..... R.F. Steadford.....
McIntosh..... L.F. Gillen.....
Chandler..... C. Kingsley.....
Carlson..... R.G. Douglas, Capt.....
Meyers..... L.G. Wymen.....

ABE MARTIN

Give some folks plenty of good clothes and they'll hustle around and get the bread. When a feller pays his coat bill these days he feels like a big win.

As a means of disposing of your real estate, the little want ads are sure winners.

THESE TWO PIRATES ARE CALLED THE MOST GRACEFUL BATTERS IN THE GAME

The Pirates may not lead the National league in many respects, but they at least may be proud that their line-up contains the game's two most graceful batters. Frank Schulte and Bill Hinchman have been selected as the two batters who surpass all others in ease and grace at the plate. Both of them are heavy sluggers and send the ball far away, but they seem able to do it without any noticeable effort.

The Oakland club gave First Baseman Rube Gardner his unconditional release, thus permitting him to make any deal for his services that he saw fit. Gardner had given Oakland four years of good service, but no other Coast league club seemed to want him.

It has been settled that Fort Wayne will take the Wheeling franchise in the Central league, with Carl Vandagriff as manager and part owner. The location of the Terre Haute franchise is still in doubt, with Saginaw and Lima both being considered for it.

Roger Bresnahan has certainly made a grand cleanup of his pitching staff. The sale of Paul Strand to Memphis was the fifth deal in a week. Strand, Adams, Kaiserlin and McGill is still in doubt, while Main, the fifth traded twirler disposed of, goes to Louisville.

The Anniston club of the Georgia-Alabama league announces the signing of Catcher Bill Pierce as its 1917 manager. Pierce was with Rome in the same league last season. He not only caught good ball, but showed a lot of ability in handling players.

Wade Kilifer is much disappointed at the failure of the deal that would have permitted him to play with Los Angeles and he says he will not return to the American Association. Manager Frank Chance yet hopes he may be able to put through a deal that will land Kilifer for his outfield.

East Side Alleys

The Pittsburgh club disposed of one shortstop candidate by returning Jimmy Smith to the Cardinals. On playing out another in Archer Reilly, who was with Wheeling in the Central league last season, where he made a good showing. It will be merry competition among the youngsters to secure the job that Hays Wagner seems bound to vacate.

Failing to get Catcher Frank Snyder from the Cardinals in a back-swap, President Ebbetts of the Brooklyn Dodgers last week made a straight cash offer. Snyder was still with the Cardinals at last accounts, but this deal is clear—the club that of Lev McCarty go must have a catcher, and it can't afford to let coin stand in the way.

The failure of the Louisville-Los Angeles deal for Wade Kilifer in exchange for Artie Butler leaves Butler still on the hands of Los Angeles. Butler says he will not go to the coast, and perhaps Manager Frank Chance, having been tipped off, will not insist.

Jack Holland, who has found looking after both Cardinals and playing ends of the St. Joseph club more than one man can handle, has named Harry Spratt as business manager of his club. This means that Holland will be able to spend more time on the bench and coaching his players.

Richards' Goldfish again trimmed Missner's last night, piling up a score of 2,832 against 2,614 by the Line City squad. A week ago the Janesville stars went to Beloit and there beat Missner's men on their own alleys. For last, consistent bowling the game rolled by the local team last night was one that will be hard to beat, all three of the games being above the nine hundred mark.

"HOME OF CHARACTER" NO. 324

An Attractive Bungalow—By John Henry Newson

For the small family nothing is better adapted than the bungalow. In the above design you have a roomy, convenient, well arranged home that can be built at a reasonable figure.

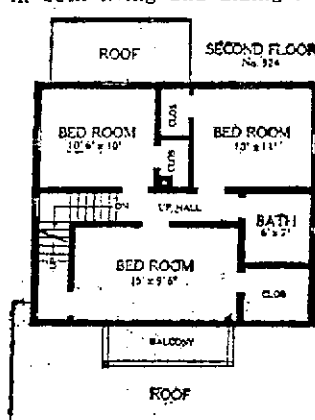

The exterior is finished with lap siding and shingles, with shingle roof and cement block ashlar and porch piers. The interior: oak floors and woodwork in both living and dining rooms.

In the remainder of the house yellow pine is used. This bungalow is 26 ft. x 24 ft. and has a basement under the entire house, but no attic; hot air furnace; porcelain enameled iron plumbing fixtures.

Both first and second floors are well laid out for comfort and convenience. The living room is of generous size and well lighted; three bedrooms, bath and ample closet room on the second floor.

This bungalow can be built for from $1800 to $2500—depending on equipment and grade of materials specified.

Gazette readers are welcome to further information concerning these plans—address all inquiries to "John Henry Newson, Homes of Character Dept., The Gazette."

THE HUMPHREY RADIANTFIRE

is a new type of gas heater, designed to set in your open fireplace, and the glowing incandescent mass reminds you of a gigantic opal, fifteen by ten inches. It is an odorless, noiseless gas grate equipment, capable of projecting intense, radiant heat.
